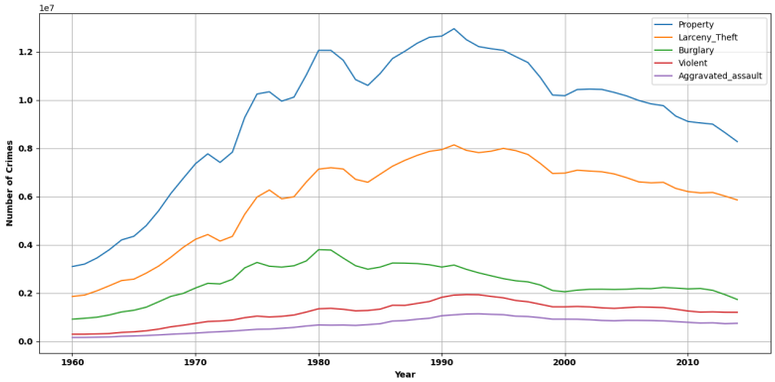
Crime in the USA

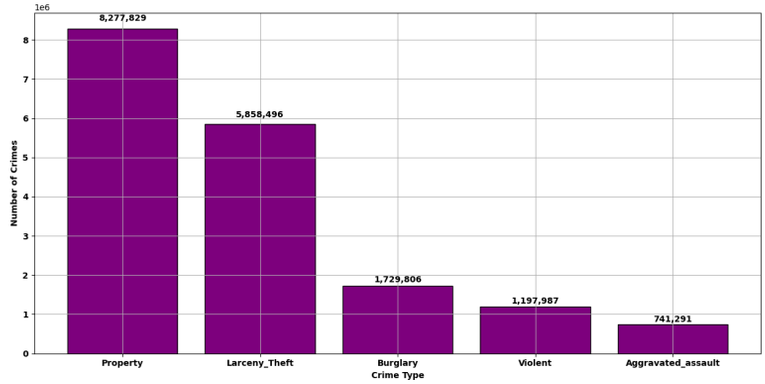
Name :Aqsa Aslam

ID: 22098823

github link



Evolution of Crime Rates in the Top Five Categories from 1960 to 2014 in United State

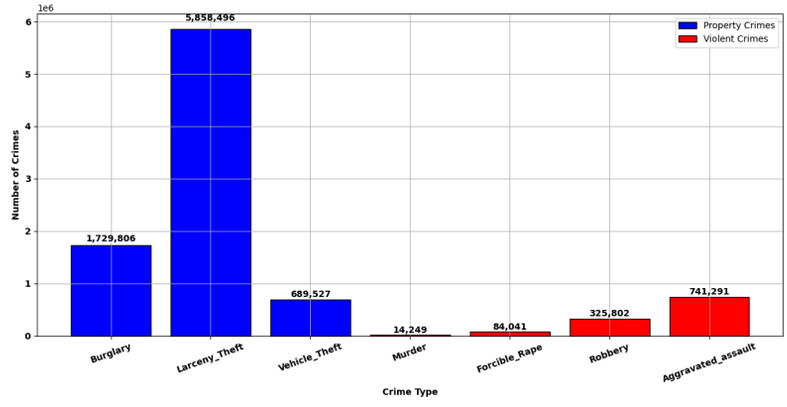


Top Five Crime Category in 2014

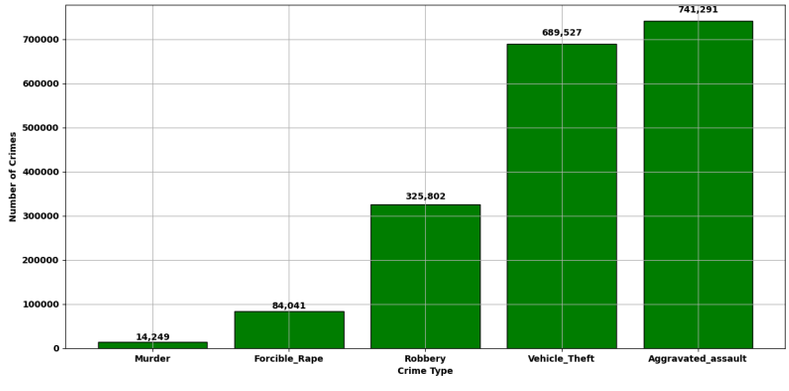
Crime rates in the United States have been decreasing since 2000, with crime rates peaking in the 1990s. In 2014, property crime was the most prevalent type of crime, with 8,277,829 reported incidents. Larceny theft was the second most common type of property crime, with 5,858,496 incidents, followed by Burglary, with 1,729,806 incidents. Overall, violent crime had fewer incidents, with a total of 1,197,987, compared to Burglary, a type of property crime.

The United States has a higher number of property crimes compared to violent crimes. Among property crimes, larceny-Theft had the highest number of reports, while among violent crimes, Aggravated Assault had the highest number of reports, with 741,291 incidents.

In 2014, the lowest crime reported in the United States was murder, with only 14,249 incidents. Robbery, with 325,807 incidents, and Vehicle Theft, with 689,527 incidents, were among the property crimes listed in the lowest crime categories.



Comparison of Property and Violent Crimes in 2014



Lowest Five Crime Category in the United State in 2014